

Sintra and Cascais from Lisbon

Chosen in the fourteenth century as summer residence for the Portuguese kings, and in the nineteenth century as the capital of the romanticism, Lord Byron called Sintra as “My glorious Eden”.

The individuality of the landscape, the weird trees that grow only there, and the perfect integration between man and nature convinced UNESCO to declare Sintra as ‘World heritage’.

This is a small town between the mountain and the Ocean. It has such a unique ambience that can be felt only there, and a fresh air that purifies our lungs.

Here you’ll have time to visit one Palace of your choice: the unique and medieval National Palace, the fairy-tale Pena Palace or the mystic Regaleira manor house. Before you head out, you taste the regional sweet: a subtle crust filled with almonds and eggs cream, the finest sweet you ever tried!

While leaving Sintra you’ll cross the national park of Sintra Cascais, for a small stop at Rocca Cape, the western most point of Continental Europe. You’ll arrive at Cascais just on time to have lunch, having the chance to taste the mouthwatering fresh fish and sea food from there.

Once you have indulged in a delicious lunch, you will enjoy relaxing on the beach or you can go for a walk. Before leaving for Lisbon you’ll visit the “Mouth of Hell”, a small cliff that creates a “mouth”, and when the sea is stormy it creates enormous waves.

While returning to Lisbon you’ll be able to continue enjoying the mesmerizing look of the ocean through a panoramic road. The beaches from Cacais to Lisbon are breath taking and an unforgettable moment. You’ll also enjoy seeing the exact point where the river and the ocean get together.
