

Douro Valley Day Trip

Port Wine is produced 75 miles away from the city of Porto, in the oldest demarcated wine region in the world known as the Douro Valley. This is really a hidden place surrounded and protected by mountains that not only preserves nature and people's authenticity but also creates a micro-climate necessary to grow the best Port Wine grape varieties.

Besides the landscape, you'll have a full Port Wine experience, visiting different wine estates and tasting all styles of the finest Port Wine - White Port, Ruby, Tawny, LBV (Late Bottled Vintage) and Vintage.

All these tastings and visits will take place throughout the day, in different locations, in a very smooth way, making everything feel logical.

Each wine estate was carefully selected by taking in consideration the quality of the wine (some "Wine Spectator" awarded wineries), location and facilities.

You'll visit traditional places from small producers, and modern estates belonging to big Port Wine companies.

For lunch we want to show you the local flavors, in a non-touristy place. So, we'll take you deep into the valley, away from any main roads and towns, to an almost forgotten small village with a beautiful breath-taking view.

You'll admire the landscape, the most beautiful belvederes, the wine estates, the local people and typical food. But, most importantly, you'll have a very relaxing day. You will love being surrounded by nature and the Douro River.

Please note that some of the tastings and visits can easily be replaced by other activities like taking a cruise in the Douro River or visiting an old olive oil private mill.
